Badly Mixed.

John B. Collins son of a wealthy St. Louis Engineer married Cora Claymorgans, a negress, in August 1910. Louis P. Claymorgans, father of five girls and one boy, is employed in one of the City departments, and is on the pay roll as a negro. The family claimed to be of Spanish descent, to account for their peculiar complexions. Maud Claymorgans married L. E. J. Davis, a clerk at the annex Station of the St. Louis Post-office. Chlotilde is a pupil at Central High School and Grace attends Longfellow school, enrolled as white. Blanch, who goes under the alias of Blanche Morgan is a stenographer in Syndicate Trust building. Walter, the only son, is employed by an Automobile Co., and is a graduate of Central High School, as white. The prominence of the families into which the Claymorgans have married, the position in business circles and enrollment in white schools of other members of the family, has created a decided sensation, and steps are being taken to break all these connections. The discovery was made that such a state of affairs existed only after the birth of a child to Davis, which was too plainly negro to be mistaken, and the investigation disclosed the true type and race of the Claymorgans. Divorce, dismissal from schools and employment and eviction from their home is the result of the fraud practiced by the family.

A lot of people have worried themselves to death over things that never happened.

The man who is looking for a bright boy to employ never calls around the pool halls.

If all the things we plan for tomorrow had been accomplished yesterday there would be very little to do.

TO BUILD A MONSTER SHIP

It is to be the Biggest Ever Launched in the World.

That the Hamburg-American line is to make an effort to eclipse in grandeur and speed all that is promised for the giant White Star line ships. Olympic and Titanic, was revealed here when it was learned that the German company had placed an order with Harland & Wolff for a vessel 950 feet long.

This will exceed by nearly 70 feet the length of the two White Star ships. The newest liner will be the biggest ship in the world.

It also is regarded as significant that the German company has gone to the builders of the White Star leviathans, one of which, the Olympic, it has been announced, will start on her maiden voyage for New York on June 28.

The Olympic and the Titanic are each 882 feet long, with a tonnage each of sixty thousand tons. The Mauretania is 762 feet long, tonnage 31,938; the Lusitania the same length and 31,550 tonnage. The new German vessel will be nearly 200 feet longer than either Cunarder.

The Santa Fe Agricultural Scholarships.

The generous offer of the Santa Fe railroad to 12 scholarships of $50 each to the short winter course in agriculture at the University of Missouri next winter affords a rare opportunity for the people living in the Santa Fe territory to secure much valuable instruction in agriculture at the agriculture college without any cost to them whatever. The Santa Fe proposes to award one of these scholarships in each county in Missouri through which their lines extend, to the man or boy between 18 and 40, who grows and exhibits the best 10 ears of corn in this county this year. These scholarships will pay the entire expenses including railroad fare, of the winner for the first term of seven weeks beginning November 1st 1920.

The short winter course teaches men and boys how to farm better. Practical instruction is given in Soil Fertility, Farm Crops, Animal Breeding, Stock Judging, Veterinary Science, Feeding of Livestock, Dairying, Horticulture, Farm Buildings, Machinery, Poultry Farming and other lines of farm work. You will gain much valuable information that you can put into practice every day on the farm—information that not only will be of value to you but to your neighbors as well by observation of your results. The Santa Fe railroad, after carefully investigating the work done at the agricultural college believes it can well afford to send farmers along its lines to the college to make careful study of modern methods of agriculture. Why not take advantage of the railroad's generous offer and prepare yourself to select and grow the best corn, to know the best types of cattle, horses, sheep and swine, to know how to feed the dairy cow to make her produce the most milk, to know how to cultivate and spray the orchard to make it produce most, to know how to cure hog cholera, and to prevent the spread of this disease—in short, to know how to get the most out of farm life both in a remunerative as well as enjoyable way.

The business of good farming is taught at the agricultural college every year to hundreds of the brightest and most up-to-date farmer boys of Missouri. Here are the opinions of some who have taken the course. Glen O. Yoder of Holden said: "The work has indeed been profitable to me. I believe that each dollar I have spent will be at least $10 to me within a few years." Grant H. Morthland of Molino said: "I believe that every day was worth the price of the whole term in the way of dollars and cents." H. B. Herring of Forest Green said: "This course, I believe will be worth thousands of dollars to me in after life and to my neighbors." Why not ally yourself with these young men who are to be the leading farmers of Missouri in a few years?

It is well to enter the Santa Fe contest simply to learn how to select corn for shows and to learn how to prepare the seed bed, to plant, and to cultivate corn. The enthusiasm which you will gain by being in the contest will be a great incentive for better farming and more knowledge of the underlying principles of this noble profession.

Join the contest, send your name, age and address to the agricultural college, plant some good corn and do your best to win the scholarship in your county. If you want more information on corn growing ask for a bulletin on this subject.

For rules governing the contest and any other information concerning the contest address, C. E. Hatchison, Columbia, Mo. Secretary Missouri Corn Growers' association. University of Missouri.

Editor Witt of the Marshall Republican does not favor the spoiling of a child by the non-use of the rod. Last week he said editorially: "Going along East Arrow one day last week we heard the loud wails of several youngsters mingled with the rhythmic slap, slap, slap of a slipper or other utensil. We are glad to know there's at least one woman in Marshall who has not forgotten the good old remedy when occasion demands. If there is anything disgusting, it is a 6-year-old boy or girl saying to the mother, 'I won't do it,' and the mother giving in with a 'well.'"
